HOSTETTER IS A SPRINTER

He Proves Good on Short Distance, Anyway.

HE LANDS HIS VICTIM

After a Hard Run of One Hundred Yards.

Restaurant Men Will Contest the Cases Should the Mayor Rule Against Them.

As a sprinter, Officer Jerome Hostetter is the candy. If any of the prospective occupants of cells in the city prison contemplate a dash for liberty when being arrested, they had better beware that Hostetter is not the man who takes them into custody.

John Baldauf, a local contractor, got into trouble with some farmers at a saloon at the corner of Church and Main streets, and shortly afterward, he rushed into the police headquarters, demanding protection of the police. The police told him to stay out of the place and no trouble would come to him, but not for John. Brave man that he was, he went back and evidently got tangled up again with the sons of the soil. When Johnnie next came into police headquarters he had an optic that protruded so far he seemed to be walking north by east. He also had a goodly supply of booze aboard and Officer Hostetter, believing that the best protection that could be given to John was to put him behind the bars until he had sobered up. As he stopped to unlock the door leading into the corridor at the prison, John yelled, "Not for mine in there," and breaking loose from the officer, he started for Prospect street. The officer, much surprised, followed. The firemen saw a streak of blue pass their windows and rushed out to see the cop chasing the fugitive down Prospect street. In front of the U. B. church, the officer collared his man with a mighty grab at his throat and both rolled in the dust. Hostetter was going so fast that had he not fallen he could not have stopped this side of Prospect.

John cooled down in a cell while Hostetter took about two hours off to get his wind and it will take about three weeks to get the soreness out of his muscles.

Archie Brightner was arrested yesterday afternoon in the West End by Officer Bell on a charge of drunkenness. Archie has been up before in the mayor's court and the mayor refused to believe his promise to be good in the future. A sentence of thirty days in the workhouse and a fine of $5 was given to Archibald Archie, however, pleaded so hard for mercy and promised to keep the pledge, the mayor was induced to suspend the sentence during good behavior.

Officer Schaffer, of the merchant's police force, believes that he was close on the heels of a burglar at the J. P. Ludwig store, last night, about midnight. The officer was making a tour of the alleys when the breaking of a pane of glass near Hotel Marion caused him to run in that direction. He found the glass in a window between Hotel Marion and the Sterling store broken. No one was to be found about the premises. It is believed that the noise of the breaking glass was so loud that the burglar fled. He could easily have entered the store after breaking the glass.

The trial of Nels Abel, charge with selling drinks on Nov. 11, which has been postponed several times in the mayor's court, will be heard tomorrow afternoon. Abel claims that the affidavit filed against him is merely a piece of spite work and he will carry the case to the higher courts, if necessary.

MOONLIGHT SKATE

Attracts Four Hundred Persons to the Royal Rink.

A large and orderly crowd attended the regular weekly moonlight skate at the Royal Roller rink Wednesday night. When the program opened at 8 o'clock there were more than four hundred people on skates besides a score of spectators who assembled to view the merry sport. The grand march which was cleverly managed by skate master John Trevis, was the principal number of the evening's program.

If you enjoy muffins and waffles, try Mrs. Austin's Pancake flour and you will be delighted with the results.

Court Happenings

Williams, Taylor and Prettyman, attorneys for the C. D. & M., today filed a demurrer to the amended petition of Charles W. Solomon, who was badly injured July 12 of last year and sued the company for $10,000.

The amended petition alleges that the accident was due to the negligence on the part of the conductor of the passenger car which crashed into the work car on which Solomon was riding.

The demurrer alleges that the conductor of the passenger car was not in authority over Solomon and was therefore only a fellow servant. Under which condition it is claimed that a servant of a company cannot recover when his injuries are sustained as the result of carelessness of a fellow servant. The injury, so it is claimed, must be the result of negligence of some servant of the company who has authority over the injured party.

The trial docket for the next term of the court of common pleas shows 298 civil cases. Of this number sixty-seven are divorce cases which is a slight increase over last term.

The grand jury will report for the next term on January 21 and the petit jury on Feb. 4. In the meantime the trial of Giuseppe Guiffre, alleged murderer of his brother, will have been held, the date for the opening session being set for January 28.

TWO FALLS IN NINETY MINUTES

Are the Conditions Accepted by Bartl.

Sports From Many Surrounding Cities are Expected Here Tomorrow.

The seat sale for the Bartl-Akerman match at the Grand tomorrow night, is very heavy and a packed house is assured. All arrangements for the match have been completed, and it is expected that a great contest will be witnessed.

The terms of the match were up to Bartl. He could either have arranged the match for 145 pounds ringside, best two falls in three, or agree to throw Akerman twice in 20 minutes. He has chosen the latter proposition and will have his hands full in accomplishing it. Bartl took to the roads today for about six miles and concluded his training for the match with a vigorous rub down.

It is expected that sports from Delaware, Galion, Kenton, Lima and many other surrounding cities will be present at the match.

APPRECIATIVE AUDIENCE

Heard the Dunbars at Epworth Last Evening.

AN EXCELLENT NUMBER

Provided by Lecture Course Committee.

The Quartet Proved One of the Most Talented Organizations Ever Visiting Marion.

If encores are the criterion, then the Dunbar entertainment at Epworth church, last night, was the most popular of the season. The Dunbars proved a company of remarkable talent and their rare efforts were greeted by a massive audience which expressed appreciation at every opportunity.

The company was composed of C. C. Robinson, tenor; Ralph Dunbar, tenor; Harry C. Dunbar, baritone; J. Leon Feagar, basso. The program consisted of quartette selections, dramatic readings and impersonations and instrumental selections from a trio, playing the flute, piano and cello. One of the features of the program, deserving of special commendation, was the solo work of Ralph Dunbar on the violin cello. The readings of Harry Dunbar made a hit, and the solo work of Mr. Feagar was extraordinary.

As bell ringers, the Dunbar company was beyond doubt the best that a Marion audience has ever been privileged to enjoy. The manner in which they handled the silver toned bells was simply marvelous, and their imitation of London chimes was a feature in itself of great musical consequence.

The Dunbars fully demonstrated last night that they have a novelty and variety in program that cannot but fail to please all audiences, and the Y. M. C. A. lecture committee certainly made a wise choice when it secured them.

The next number on the Y. M. C. A. lecture course will be the Roney boys' concert company which will appear for matinee and evening performance on Friday, February 1.

GLITTER OF DIAMONDS

Led to Discovery of a Wreck Victim and Her Life was Saved.

Washington, D. C., January 10.—A story of great human interest is centered in the miraculous escape from death of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence A. Proctor, of Detroit, Mich., in the wreck on the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad at Terra Cotta on December 30. Mr. and Mrs. Proctor had been visiting the latter's father, who was dying, at Frederick, Md., and were returning to Washington when the collision occurred. They were seated in the last compartment of the fated train and were the only person in that section who were not killed. Mr. Proctor received injuries that will leave him a cripple for life. Mrs. Proctor sustained internal injuries of a lesser nature. They are both in the hospital here.

In recounting her experiences, Mrs. Proctor said: "Mr. Proctor and I were in the front seats of the rear compartment when the crash came. Suddenly there was a tearing and grinding and twisting as if all the forces of nature had swept down upon us and enveloped us. Debris filled the air. In a twinkling this was followed by the shrieks and groans of the dying and maimed.

"Our car was reduced to kindling wood except two seats. My face and head were firmly wedged between these and my arms plunked back of me. I could neither move nor utter a sound. Suddenly the trucks in which the seats were imbedded started down the tracks, and in this manner I was dragged for nearly half a mile. I was slowly but surely smothering. When the remnants of the car came to a standstill, I was unconscious.

"I probably owe my life to two diamond rings which I wore. A searcher came down the tracks with a lantern. The rays from this shone against my jewels and by this method I was released. On regaining consciousness, my first thoughts were of Mr. Proctor. I immediately started up the track like a wild deer. I seemed to be possessed of superhuman strength.

"When at last I found him, he was lying in a ditch by the roadside, almost submerged by water and literally covered with wreckage. I tried so hard to drag him out, but it was an unequal task. Then I took off my coat and furs. These I forced beneath him in an effort to protect him from the water. It was three hours before he was extricated, a bleeding mass. Then, and then only did I realize that I had been injured."

WILL TEST THE LID CASES IN NEWARK

Newark, Jan. 9.—Mayor McCleery had a large audience yesterday when the "lid" cases were called. Seven fruit, cigar and candy dealers had been arrested for violating the mayor's order to keep closed on Sunday. It was decided to make one of the cases answer for all and then appeal to the common pleas court. Joseph Georgetti was fined $25 and costs and gave $100 appeal bond.

The defense will be that of equal rights. It is claimed that permission was given certain dealers to keep their stores open on Sunday and that the mayor discriminated in the matter.

Brief Mention

Mr. M. V. Payne is seriously ill at his home on West Columbia street, suffering from a severe attack of heart trouble.

The cabinet of the Powell class of Epworth Sunday School will meet in the basement of the church, this evening. Some very important business will be up for consideration.

Miss Mary Bishop, of Muncie, Ind., who has been seriously ill at the home of Dr. and Mrs. D. O. Weeks, where she is visiting, is reported very much improved today.

An excellent program of rhetoricals was rendered before the student body of the High school this morning by the Sophomore class. Those who participated in the program were: Pearl Clapsaddle, Evaline McKinley, Ethel O'Connor, Hazel Zieg, Rose Waddell, Hazel Morrow, Lulu Paschall.

The annual protracted meetings of the Morral M. E. church were opened last night with a large audience in attendance. Rev. O. E. Smith delivered a powerful sermon on "The Soul's Salvation." The meetings will continue for an indefinite period.

Merely Personal

Charles Vogel left this morning for Chicago on business.

Fred Lennon, of Postoria, who has been visiting in the city for several days, has returned to his home.

Miss Pearl Saylor returned today to her home in Bluffton, Indiana, after a short visit with relatives in the city.

Mrs. A. Edgell and Son, Wilbert of Cardington, are guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John F. Kreis, of Walnut street.

Stockholders' Meeting

The annual meeting of the Stockholders of the Mirror Publishing Company will be held at the office of the company Wednesday January 30, 1937, at 7:30 p. m., for the purpose of electing a board of directors, and for the transacting of such other business as may come before said body.
